ORACLE HAS CHANGED - HAVE YOU?

The method in which Oracle delivers updates to PeopleSoft changes significantly in version 9.2. In previous versions, once a release was made generally available, Oracle would begin working on the subsequent release. This meant that you would need to wait until the next release was available and then upgrade to take advantage of any new features and improvements.

With PeopleSoft 9.2, Oracle continues development on the current version, allowing you to take advantage of new features through the process of applying an update instead of a major upgrade project. Oracle PeopleSoft 9.2 gives you the flexibility to choose what changes you want and the timing of when to apply them so that changes are not disruptive to your business cycle.

A NEW DELIVERY MODEL

To take advantage of Oracle's new delivery model requires a review of current sustainment processes. If your organization does not have to plan for major upgrades every few years, then what do you need to plan for? How will your organization manage major and minor changes based on how PeopleSoft updates are delivered?

HOW WE CAN HELP

Sierra Systems has developed a scalable workshop to help organizations determine their strategy for managing this change.

In two hours we can help you:

- Identify the questions you need to be asking yourselves to adapt to this new model;
- Identify the types of strategies needed to manage the new delivery model in your organization.

In two to three days, we can:

- Collaborate with your teams to understand the processes these changes will affect;
- Discuss the difference between maintenance and new feature adoption strategies and implications of each;
- Develop a list of options and opportunities available to determine how your organization will undertake regular updates and the "get current" update;
- Help you define your strategy to manage the new delivery model that works best for your organization.
